MY CREED

You can read through once. But should you mean it and want to make it a creed for your understanding of you, read it innumerably.

I DESERVE…

Life is but of a single privilege, a privilege that doesn't come twice,

Life is almost the example of perfect, with a daily rising hope to be better, and the very example of imperfection. Oh! What an irony. The irony of being the best anyone could ask of and the worst some have dreamt of. Life is a currency of many denominations, so many a denomination yet of a single model. Yes! A model of a coin. Life has many denominations to offer me, yet it is in coins, coming alongside the opposite of its offering. When it come good, be sure there is a bad lurking behind. And when it appears bad, the God that is ready to displace it is not far behind.

Of this understanding, I almost do not bother of what it has to offer, nor should any of us think life will ever give us what we want or need or such as we think, we deserve. No! it won't. I must place my demand, so I say:

I deserve to be happy, for in me lies the potential to be.

I deserve to be me, I deserve to know why I am me.

I deserve the best of what me can offer, I am of a certain worth; Priceless.

I am a co-Creator of the Universe.

My abundance is a reflection of my inner space.

I am an Artist with a Soul, I am aware of my creative power.

I am the focal point of essence, the evidence of a dimension in God.

I am of many faces, and this is due to the many phases I go through to be me.

I accept my differences with you and believe we are more alike than unalike, we are one.

I will take complete responsibility of my life and I intend to live it consciously, with courage and conviction, so that I walk my talk and help someone see how glorious we all truly are.

I understand that at the end of it all, it is all between me and ME. The Me being the part of me which is of the Source, the Creator. So I intend to be kind and generous, to be loving and forgiving, to be open and adventurous.